THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILEOAD .- The advantages and pressing necessity for a railroad communication between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans built entirely within the limits of the States and Territories of the United States, have long occupied the public mind. Various routes across the vast Western plains and the rugged gorges of the Rocky Mountains have been examined, and numerou propositions have been submitted to the people and to Cougress in reference to the route to be adopted for this great line of railway. One difficulty hith-erto produced has been the contest between the advocates of a northern and a southern route, but engineers who have reconnoitered the proposed northern route have been unable to agree upon its practicability. Some of the most intelligent and experienced of those who have surveyed the northern route report that it is barely passable for mules and travelers on foot, and positively assert that no railroad can be built in that direction. Enough has been ascertained to prove that, even were a railway constructed through that inhospitable region, where Col. Fremont and his party, following Col. Benton's favorite idea of tracing the buffalo-tracks, were nearly destroyed in snow-drifts, it would be rendered almost entirely useless by the severity of the weather and the accumulation of snow. Public opinion is fast settling down in favor of a southern route, and in the course of events, whose shadows are already seen, probably by the time this gigantic enterprise can be completed, a Pacific railroad near the 32d parallel of latitude may be found to be actually a central route for our vast and growing

The manifestations of public opinion in favor of a railroad connection between the two great oceans which form our Eastern and Western boundaries are daily increasing, and unscrupulous speculators have eought to obtain sufficient influence to press upor Congress the adoption of a gigantic omnibus bill providing for the simultaneous construction of three great lines, and involving the appropriation of milcres of public land and the expenditure of many millions of public treasure. This gigantic scheme for making fabulous fortunes out of the people cannot certainly be successful. It is too hideous ly corrupt and too glaringly a swindle to receive the approbation of the representatives of the people.

In the mean time the people have themselves ta ken the matter in hand and the Pacific Railroad has actually been begun, and its speedy construction for over half of the distance from the Mississippi river to the Pacific Ocean has already been amply provided for by the munificence of the State of Texas. The Atlantic cities will soon be connected by various lines of railroad with the Mississippi river, and ere the completion of the Southern Pacific Railroad. it will be directly connected by rail with St. Louis Cairo, Memphis, Vicksburg, New Orleans, and Galveston. Thus the main difficulty hitherto presented in regard to the selection of a route for the main trunk will be effectually obviated.

This road will give us a railroad to El Paso, and pass chrongh some of the richest country in the Union. As far as El Paso, its construction is amply provided for by the State loans and grants of lands made to it by Texas. The lands alone will, at a very low price, realize to the Company double the amount of the cost of the whole road. It will be gratifying to the stockholders in this Company to know that, upon the faith of sufficient guarantees given by the Board of Directors, ample means have been procured to finish the first and even the second section of twenty-five miles each, so that the State leans and lands may be now considered altogether secure, and the road will be built without requiring the payment of more than five per cent, upon the ad is a legitimate enterprize from which This good is a legitimate enterprize from which the secholders will realize immense profits. It passes entirely across the richest portion of the State of Texas, and the counties lying immediately upon its route will, soon after its completion, furnish trade enough to make it a very profitable road.

even if there was no surplus of assets from the sale of lands, and if the stockholders were required to pay the full amount of their subscriptions instead of the five per cent to which only the stock will be assessed. The Northern part of Texas is the finest grain-growing country in the world. Wheat of a superior quality ripens there so early in the year that it can be sent to our markets six weeks earlier than that produced in our middle States. Cotton also of the very finest quality can be abundantly produced in the counties south of the line of this road. When the road is built, this cotton can com pete successfully in the Savannah market with that grown in Georgia. At present this produce is wagoned for two or three hundred miles to find other means of transportation to a market, and its value is more than half consumed in the cost of transportation. The wheat, flour, and cotton of Texas will of themselves furnish ample and profitable business for a railroad.

It is not probable that the road will terminate at Ill Paso. It will most certainly be extended to the Pacific. To El Paso, a distance of 2,100 miles from Washington by railroad, it will have been completed entirely by individual enterprise and State aid. From El Paso to San Diego on the Pacific is but 750 miles and, if Government aid is to be extended to any Pacific railroad, it should be devoted to extending the Southern Pacific through the new Territory of Arizonia or the Gadaden purchase. The length of the road through this Territory will be four or five hundred miles, and, as it is public territory, the question of the propriety of extending Government aid to its construction is presented in the least objec tionable form. The small portion of the road through California to the Pacific ocean can be easily built, if that portion through the Messilla valley from El Paso to Colorado City is provided for. This project is now attracting public attention every where. It is practicable, and indeed already many of the greatest difficulties to be encountered have been removed by the enterprise of those who have undertaken the construction of the Sonthern Pacific road. Let us give our energies to the completion of this undertaking, and afterwards, if necessary, other routes may be easily constructed without squandering our public lands and involving our Government in debt to the amount of hundreds of millions of

And over crimson morning seas. From frozen lakes, and isles of palm, Blow winds of frost, and winds of balm, And waft him royal argosies!

MARRIAGE EXTRAORDINARY.—The Presbyterian General Assemblies have been disputing for a long time concerning the propriety of a man marrying his deceased wife's sister. The legality of a nearer and more delicate relationship being established by marriage has just been decided by our Court of Appeals. It is altogether proper, so says that learned tribunal, the highest authority in the State, for a man to marry his mother-in-law! The quartette of Judges came to this decision after this fashion, and upon the following case: Ellen Bell married Samuel Bell, her son-in-law. Mr. B. dicd, leaving the interesting widow, and also several children by his first wife, whose grand-mother was at the same time their step-mother. These children refused to grant the old lady her dower, and hence the suit.

The cause was brought before Judge Pryor, the late learned and estimable Judge of the adjoining circuit. He decided that the marriage was void, as vere within the degr fixed by the statute of 1798.

An appeal was taken, and the adjudication of the lower Court was reversed. The Court of Appeals decided that there was no prohibition to such a marriage by the statute of 1798—that marriages within the Levitical degree are not void, though voidable.

Accordingly, if any man desires to marry his mother-in-law he can go ahead. The law is on his side.

A NEW CANAL AROUND THE FALLS .- Our up river neighbors at Cincinnati, who plume themselves on being Queen citizens, seem impregnable to sense upon the subject of a canal around the falls at this point. They have been laboring for years to construct that improvement on the Indiana shore, oppo site this city, and some months since went through the formal farce of breaking ground. A memorial has just been prepared signed by twenty-five hundred persons, petitioning Congress to appropriate sum sufficient to construct a new canal.

This is one of the chimerical ideas that now and then fumes and frets in the brains of the Cincinnatians. It has been demonstrated by the surveys of competent topographical engineers that a canal on the Indiana side would be too costly to admit of its construction with a view to future profits. Also, that during fully one half the year the outlet would be inaccessible to steamboats.

If Cincinnati would join the other river cities in an effort to enlarge the present canal around the alls, something feasible might be accomplished. The good sense of her merchants should dictate that policy.

We had the pleasure of knowing Mrs. Julia L. Dumont, the Indiana poetess, who recently died at Vevay in that State. We never in our lives saw a woman that approached more nearly than she to the realization of our ideas of a saint or an angel.

VETERANS OF THE REVOLUTION. - The whole number of revolutionary soldiers on the pension rolls on the 12th of July last was only five hundred and fourteen, and seven deaths have since been registered. The noble and invincible band of heroes is fast passing away.

On New Year's Day one hundred members of the Catholic Church in Maysville pledged them; selves to total abstinence for one year.

THE PARIS CONGRESS.—There is such speculation throughout the civilized world as to the probable action of the Assembly of the Imperial and Royal Congress now in session at Paris. That body consists of Representatives of the Governments of France, England, Russia, Prussia, Austria, and intendent, in February last, up to January 1st, the Turkey.

The ostensible object of the meeting of the Congress is the decision of the question as to the Russian occupation of Belgrade and the Isle of Serpents; but it is not believed in diplomatic circles' that these questions are, in the estimation of at least England, France, and Turkey, the only or even the chief ones to be considered and settled. The Paris and London papers suggest unequivocally, and no doubt with truth, that the subject of cipalities of Moldavia and Wallachia must and will be disposed of, and they express their conviction that France, England, and Turkey will require Austria to evacuate them.

The origin of this question is not understood by all in this country. At the breaking out of the war between Russia and Turkey, and before France and England had taken part with Turkey, Russia invaded the Turkish Principalities of Moldavia and Wallachia, and some severe fighting took place there between the belligerents. When France and England interfered, they seemed determined to require that Russia should withdraw from those Principalities. In that condition of things, Austria, though she declined a full cooperation with the allied powers, signified to them her willingness to occupy the Principalities and exclude the Russians. The terms of the offer were not very well defined, but the Allies, understanding that the proposed occupation was to be for the benefit of Turkey and only so long as the Principalities should be threatened by Russia, assented to the arrangement. Accordingly Austria took armed possession of the Principalities, and she holds them still. Although peace has been concluded about a year, she shows not the slightest symptom of any intention to evacuate Moldavia and Wallachia, but seems to regard them as a regular part of her permanent possessions

We do not see how France and England and Turkey can possibly submit to this, nor do we suppose that they mean to submit to it. It was on account of Russia's invasion of the Principalities that the war was entered into, France and England being avowedly determined not to let Russia occupy them but to secure them to Turkey. France and England bore the whole of the terrible burden of the war, Austria standing aloof and refusing all participation in it: and undoubteuly the two former powers would disgrace themselves in the eves of civilized mankind if they were now to assent tamely to Austria's retaining as her own the Principalities in question. They would render themselves the jest and the laughing-stock of the nations.

When Austria took possession of the Principali ties, Russia withdrew her forces, announcing that Austria was acting in her behalf and in her interests. The general impression at the time was that Russia set up this pretext for the purpose of saving her own pride. If however it was true that Austria seized the Principalities in Russia's behalf, and if it is true that she is still occupying them in Russia's behalf, such a state of things must be even more offensive and disreputable to England and France than if Austria had seized and were occupying the Principalities on her own account. Upor either supposition the Allies have been grossly and most miserably imposed on, and we cannot suppose that they will permit the present imperial and roy al congress to close its session without a specific and rigorous adjustment of the question. Undoubtedly England sorely deprecates another war, but we ar confident she would go into one, and we are sure that France would, so far at least as might be found necessary in order to the exclusion of Austria from the old Turkish Principalities.

NEW BOOKS .- Recollections of a Life-Time. By S. G. Goodrich, author of Peter Parley's Tales. Miller, Orton, & Mulligan; New York .- This work from the pen of an author who is deservedly a favorite of everybody, consists of two handsome volumes of between five and six hundred pages each. It is in the form of letters to a friend and sets forth in a most agreeable style the thousand varied and interesting reminiscences of the life of a literary man of large experience and keen and shrewd observation. There is not a letter in it but will attract and reward the attention of the reader. It is for sale at the bookstore of Maxwell & Co.

The value of land in Clarke county may be estimated by the following sale mentioned in the Winchester Chronicle:

THE NASHVILLE RAILROAD-HOGS-WOOD. The business upon that portion of the Nashville railroad which is completed more than meets the most sanguine expectations of the friends of the enterprise. Since Mr. J. F. Gamble became superreceipts amounted to $32,210. Of this amount $5,700 was received in the month of December. When it is recollected that the road is comparatively short, and that it extends nearly into the wilderness, having no outlet for freight or passengers, the amount of business is really astonishing.

During the season the company brought to this market over 23,000 hogs-about 1,800 per day. Inthis item alone the road has demonstrated not only its present value, but the immense consequence that Austria's continued occupation of the Turkish Prin- it will be to our pork trade, when it shall have further penetrated the interior of the State.

Last summer, as we understand, Mr. Gamble made contracts for several thousand cords of wood, anticipating a severe winter, and intending to dispose of it to the poor at cost. But most of the contractors failed to come up to their bargains, and hence the inability of the company to furnish fuel. Yesterday a train brought sixty-six cords of wood to the city, forty-eight of which was for the papermill. It cost, delivered here, about $2 65. The remainder was sold to persons unable to obtain fuel elsewhere.

BOURBON WHISKY .- Long years since the article of Bourbon whisky was canonized, as the only saintly and national drink of America. Any item concerning it is therefore worthy of mention. We learn from headquarters—that is, l'aris, the capital of the Bourbon nation in this State, that there is great excitement in the whisky trade in that section. There have been sales of copper distilled, to be made this season, at 75c to 80c per gallon. A larger amount is being made this year than in any previous. Mr. J. A. Miller, whose name is known wherever spirits are held in good repute, has erected a new distillery, that will manufacture daily thirty-five barrels of the genuine oily old fashioned "Bonrbon."

HORRIBLE CHARGE.-Yesterday a man named W. H. Collins, an Englishman by birth, was arraigned before Justices Matlack and Clements, charged with making an assault on his own daughter for the purpose of committing a rape. The accusation was well substantiated, and, although the offense is not one that would subject the party to confinement in the penitentiary, it was deemed best to commit him to answer. He was accordingly remanded to jail in default of $1,000 bail.

ANOTHER FAILURE. - The Eastern mail is becoming as erratic as a comet. It is something like the wind of which the Scripture speaketh-coming when it chooses, no man knowing how, when, or whence. Last night there was another total failure. The Southern mail also partially failed. When shall we be relieved of these disagreeable occurrences? We trust the new administration will purify the Post-Office Department.

For more than a week our citizens have been compelled, in consequence of the slippery pavements, to adopt the old Dutch fashion of walking in the middle of the streets. The city has consequently presented a regular Holland aspect, minus the tall houses and green costumes. Indeed every person forced to walk has apparently adopted for his line of travel the motto-

"In medio tutiedmus."

LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD.—It will be seen from the following letter of Gov. Helm that arrangements have been made for the paym arrearages of interest and the interest for 1857, and also to increase the sinking fund for the ultimate payment of the principal of the bonds given by Davidson county, Tenn., to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. A proposition has also been made for the redemption by taxation of $200,000 of these bonds in two years:

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

NASHVILLE, Jan. 5th, 1857.

GENTLEMEN: I made application to the county court of Davidson country for a levy to meet the interest in arrears on the country bonds to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, as well as a levy of one per cent for two years to go into their sinking fund to redeem these bonds, and also a levy for the year 1857 for Interest and one per cent for that year. I am gratified to be able to announce, that, though the court consisted of about forty members, there was not a single discenting voice.

A proposition was also made that the court should redeem hy taxation $200,000 of the bonds in two years. The proposition was most favorably received, that it was thought best to postpone it till April, with a view to consult the people, which I think is proper. This community is bearing a heavy tax for railroad purposes; and, though there is a vast amount of wealth here, taxation is somewhat severe. NASHVILLE, Jan. 5th, 1857.

As my communication to the Union and American appeared in your paper, as an act of justice to this community, and especially to the members of the court individually and collectively, I hope you will publish this.

There is being manifested here a lively interest for this great road.

Respectfully, JOHN L. HELM, President.

SENATOR CRITTENDEN .- The Washington correspondent of the Charleston Courier thus describes the Senator from Kentucky:

the Senator from Kentucky:

The gentleman at his deek, with a copy of the Herald (a journal little read here, except by the victims of ibs sanguinary articles) before him, has an air of calm, gentlemanly case, which is evidently the result of habitual intercourse with the most cultivated society. His face is inglegant hut keen and speaking, giving an idea of decision, promptness, and mental power. He is evidently not one of those who every six years are transmitted from their state to the Senate chamber, to pillow themselves upon a splendid sinecure, rehearse an annual speech, and having accepted the destined number of invitations to dimers and receptions, await the warrant of a legislator's vote to terminate their political existence. He is made of "sterner stuft"—his material is not soluble by a legislative vote. As a senatorial orator, he is incontastibly the greatest in the Senate, and universally and powerfully commands the attention of them both. The plainest subject in his handsaumes a loftiues and power which elevates the minds of his hearers as much as It convinces their reason. As it was said of Michael Angelo, that every touch of his chisel was life, and that he struck out features and forms from the marble with the power of a creator—this gentleman's matery of high conceptions is so innate that he invests every topic with a sudden magnitude, which gives the most casual things a commanding interest to the popular eye.

We enjoyed the privilege of hearing the distinguished man (Mr. Critteuden, of Kentucky) speak on the melancholy announcement of Mr. Claytou's death, and his speech was not long or leud or vehement; it was a calm, and over the corpse of a great man, and delivered in a voice which tremhed under the sorrow of the occasion, and his very tones involved in them a world of deep feelings.

FRIDAY EVENING, JAN. 9, 1857.

New York CITY.-The annual message of Mayor Wood was sent in last Monday. The bol'aness and novelty of its recommendations attract general attention. A position is taken in fave, of an entire and radical change in the city gov ernment and an early application to the State Ligislature for the accomplishment of this object. The various departments of the municipal government, as new organized, are regarded as "too sovereign and independent"-without proper responsibility and constituting a dangerous power. In short, the Mayor proposes that "the government of this city should be remodeled after the General Government-that there should be one governing head-a concentration of the executive power, not decentralization, as here—that the Mayor should be to the government of this city wheat the President is to the General Government, and that the heads of the several departments should constitute his cabinet, perform their duties under his direction, and he appointed by him with the assent of the Aldermen, and be subjected to his removal, for cause." These views were expressed two years ago, and the experience of the Mayer has only confirmed him in the con-

SHOVELS. - Two hundred dozen shovels and spades per day, about one-third of the whole quantity made in the United States, are produced at one establishment-that of Messrs. Ames, in Easton, Mass. The business was commenced in 1800 by Mr. Oliver Ames, the head of the present firm, and now amounts to about $600,000 per year. No shovels or spades have been imported to any extent since 1828, and our manufacturers now export considerable quantities. Australia now demands from 5,000 to 10,000 annually. The long-handled pointed shovel is the style universally preferred in Califor nia, and it is claimed by miners that one earnes American miner, with a long-handled shevel and with a wife or sweetheart awaiting his return, is equal to about three stout Irishmen.

AN INDIAN REPUBLIC OR TWO .- Twenty-five Dakota families, living at Hazlewood, some forty miles above Fort Ridgeley, on the St. Peter's river, Minnesota, have renounced their tribal character, donned civilized dress, and formed themselves into a sort of Republic, with a written Constitution President, &c. They are intelligent and industrious, and have wheat and corn to sell.

At the Red Wood Agency there is a similar or ganization, with some ten or twelve families uniting in it.

Dr. Valentine Mott performed the operation last month, for the forty-fourth time, of tying the carotid artery in the living subject. The Napoleon of surgeons is now seventy-one years old, yet is as straight as ever, and as young at heart as when fifty years younger. WHAT IS LOVE? -- Belle Brittan's Definition answer to a lovely lady who has written to "Belle Brittan," the spicy correspondent of the New York Mirror, for a definition of Love, Fuller, who has been sporting that fascinating nomme de plume, SAVS:

Did onr fair correspondent ever "feel for her fellow men" a sentiment of frieudship, respect, esteem, admiration, adoration, or devotion! It so, when she is compelled, by the force of the "elective affinities" to concentrate all those emotions upon one happy specimen of the genus home. "Belle Brittau" thinks it will do to call the highly intending escence of all these emotions—"LOVE." But "uothlug shorter."

FASHIENABLE INTELLIGENCE.—An antiquarian furnishes a history of fashions of the olden time:

op petticoats were introduced into England in the Hoop petticoats were introduced into England in the reign of Queeu Aun. They constituted part of the female court dress, until abolished by George the Fourth. Aprons were part of the dress of a fashionable lady during the early part of the last century. In 1744 they seached the ground. Muffe and black silk manthaus were also in fashion. Ornaments were worn in profusion. A watch adorned the waist, a jeweled necklace sparkled on the bosom, and bracelets were worn over long gloves. Fawder on the hair was worn so late as 1783, when it was discarded by Queen Charlotte and her daughters. Ladies wore white silk stockings, even in mourning, as late as the year 1778. After then, black silk stockings came into fashon. Shirt collars and the round hat appeared immediately after the great Freuch Revolution.

LOVE, MARRIAGE, AND SHOOTING.-In Novemwas in the mountains hunting, a young man named Peter Jones ran off with Miss Emma Blancbett, his daughter, who was under age, and married her. To accomplish his purpose, Jones committed a most ne-farious but siegular fraud. By his procurement his uncle and aunt went to the clerk of the Owen county court and represented themselves, the one to be Peter Jenes and the other Miss Blanchett, and asked for license to marry, and they being both evidently over age, the clerk issued the license without king any questions.

They then left and handed over the license to Jones, who, in company with Miss Blanchett, went to a Rev. Mr. Sparrow, who married them. The health and spirits of Mrs. Blanchett (the mother of Miss Emma), as soon as she heard of what had oc-curred, became deeply affected. To give her beau-tiful and lovely daughter up to such a wretch as Jones seemed to her worse than consigning her to the grave. Mr. Blanchett went over to Jones' house and accosted both him and his daughter, in a friendly manner, and told the latter that her mother friendly manner, and told the latter that her mother was very unwell and deeply distressed, and that if she would come home and see her he thought it would restare her. As fer himself, he said he had no objections to the marriage, but it was preying apon his wife's mind and making her very nnhappy. If Mrs. Jones would only go with him and stay a few days he would satisfy her mother with her conduct and she could then return to Jones again. Well pleased with these representations, Mrs. Jones went with her father but remained several days longer than had been agreed on, and her hus-days longer than had been agreed on, and her hus-band therefore went over to Blanchett's house to see what was the matter, but Mr. Blanchett and family, had gone visiting a near neighbor that day. Jones found where they were, and his wife, who, it seems, did not meet him with as cheerful smiles beaming did not meet him with as cheerful smiles beaming on her countenance as were seen when they parted, a few days before. He requested her to go home with him, but she refused and informed him that she would have no more to do with him.

But he was determined not "to give it up so." He then went away and came back the same night with a gang of ruffians, mostly his relatives, and attacked Blanchett's house, he and his wife having returned home. They broke down the door and rushed in, and then a fight commenced. In the melee one of the Jones party was shot in the back and Mr. Blanchett was struck over the head with the but of a horsewine, which knocked him senseless but of a borsewhip, which knocked him senseless and bleeding to the floor. The Jones party suppos-ing they had killed Blanchett, retreated in haste carrying away with them Peter Jones's wife, the object of their visit. The persons injured are re-oovering.

'I'is said that there were as many as twenty or thirty persons in the crowd who attacked Blanchett's house. As many of them as could be identified were arrested the next day, and held to answer, at the next term of the Grant county Court, to the charge of an attempt at assassination.

The Blanchetts are in humble circumstances, but are people of the highest respectability, and their daughter is one of the most beautiful and accomplished young ladies in Kentucky. - Cynthiana News.

THE ESQUEMAUX OF SMITH'S SOUND.—An interesting lecture on the manners and customs of the Esquimaux was recently delivered before the Historical Society of Philadelphia by Dr. Isaac J.
Hayes, who spent two years and a half within the Arctic Circle, in connection with the exploring expedition. Dr. Hayes describes most particularly a tribe of these people who inhabit the shores of the head waters of Baffin's Bay, distributed along a coast line of about 400 miles, reaching from Cape York to the chance of Smith's Strait. The tribe numbers not here than 150 souls, and is rapidly docreasing. This is in consequence of the climate becoming colder. The great glacter accumulations of Greenland and hyperborean America had modified the temperature, and, as a proof of this, he said the

With the above mentioned remnant of a tribe of Rsquimaux the doctor lived for some time, consorting with them in their snow houses, traveling with them on their long journeys, joining with them in the hant, and suffering with them from the failure of the precarious sources whence they obtain their food. The doctor adopts the common theory as to the origin of these people, viz: that at some remote period in the history of the world they crossed over from Asia by the strait that joints the Arctic and Pacific seas, or by the Aluetian chain of islands from Karnschatka, and have gradually worked their way to the eastward. The following description of these people develops some peculiar characteristics: "Wherever found, whether about Icy Cape, Uugava Bay, Smith's Strait, or on the coasts of South Greenland, the same characteristics are preserved throughout. The same long, black, straight hair, the same coarse development of features, the same broad, flat faces and high cheek bones, the same height, below the mean of the Caucasian race, the same clothes of fur, the same boats (kayaks) of skin, the same huts of snow, the same doors and sledges, the same wandering life

"They have no government. They have a chief (Nalegak) in name, but do not recognize his authority. Every man does just as pleases him best. They are thoroughly democratic. Crime is not regarded as a moral delinquency, only as a violation of public opinion, dictated by selfish interest, and nunishment is only inflicted by private hands, as an nishment is only inflicted by private hands, as an

"Their religion is simple. They believe in the existence of a good Spirit (Torngarsuak) and of an evil Spirit, who is his wife or sister. Some think the Toragarsnak lives in a great house in the sea, surrounded by all kinds of sea animals, and a great surrounded by all kinds of sea animals, and a great pot near by, always filled with boiling seal for the disembodied spirits. Others think he lives in the mansion of the meon, situated on the borders of a lake abending in salmon, surrounded by a rich country, covered with grass and herds of reindeer. When this lake overflows is produces rain, and it is the spirits playing at foot-ball that causes the aurora borealis. The evil spirit lives down in the depths of the sea, in a great castle, guarded by monster seal. She has power over all the sea animals and fishes, and when there is scarcity they suppose she has them under the spell. To break this spell the priest (Angekok) is summoned, and he is supposed to make a descent, guided by his familiar spirit (Torngak) first through the kingdom of the souls, then ever an abyss which they cross on a rope of walrus skin, then, not without great peril, through the sentinel seals, directly to the throne of his barbarian fury. PRUSSIA AND SWITZERLAND .- The affairs of these countries are beginning to excite considerable interest. The following history of the difficulties existing betwen them we copy from the Journal of Com-

An article published in the Paris Moniteur of the 17th ult., concerning the dispute between the King of Prussia and the Swiss Government about the Canton of Neufchatel, has invested this affair with importance, and has rendered it for the moment the ost prominent subject of interest in political circles

It will be remembered that, at the outset of the con-It will be remembered that, at the outset of the con-troversy between Prussia and Switzerland conse-quent upon the royalist insurrection in Neuf-chatel in last September, steps were taken by both the contending parties to secure the moral sup-port of the French Emperor in favor of their rival pretensions. Prussia demanded the unconditional release, without a trial, of the ringleaders of the riot, and Switzerland refused to comply with this peremptory summons on the ground that to do so would be virtual sacrifice of her national indepen-dence the destruction of the authority of her judidence, the destruction of the authority of her judi-cial tribunals, and a nullification of her laws. The situation of France with regard to the parties, geographically as well as politically, pointed her out as the best and most appropriate mediator to adjust the difficulty impartially, and it was therefore natural that they should respectively endeavor to win her favor, and hope for the best results from her interference. Whatever hopes Switzerland may have been regarded of this resurre have heave regarded discovered. entertained of this nature, have been rudely dispelled by the article in the Moniteur.

It appears from the document above alluded to, that the Emperor advised General Dufour (the Swiss Envey) to urre upon his covernment the expedience that the Emperor advised General Dufour (the Swiss Envoy) to urge upon his government the expediency of acceeding to the request of Prussia, and of at once releasing the royalist rebels without a trial; that the Swiss Executive respectfully declined to follow this advice, and that the Emperor, indignant at this refusal, which he designates as "deplorable obstinacy," "an exaggerated susceptibility," and "a complete indifference to kis (the Emperor's) advice." now officially warms Switzerland that she wice," now officially warns Switzerland that she must not look, "in the course of events, for any further manifestation of that good will from France which she might have secured at the price of a very trifling sacrifice." In other words, that she must abide the consequences, should I'russia fulfill her threat the referrit her depends at the price of the threat of enforcing her demands at the point of the buyonet. The Moniteur goes further. It recognizes the right of the King of Prussia to Neufchatel, as established by the London protocol of 1852, signed by the Great Powers assembled there, adding that the imperial government, whatever may be its sympathy for Switerland, cannot do otherwise than acknowledge what has been solennly ratified by Treaties," and it justifies Count Pourtales and his associ ates in their attempt to overthrow the republican government in Neufchatel, and "in raising the stan-dard of their King to right for what they conceived to be their rights and the just cause.

This argument, were it asserted by the Emperors of Russia and Austria, or by any other of those monarchs who rule by the "indefeasible divine right of Kings," would appear natural enough; but when used by a sovereign who owes his throne to a revolution—who rules, as he says, by "the will of the people"—who is the very embodiment of the will of the majority as opposed to the minority, it appears singularly inconsistent and exposes the French Emperor, not unjustly, to the imputation of sacrificing principle for the purpose of winning favor from the "legitimate" monarchs of Europe.

As may easily be imagined, this abandonment of Switzerland to the consequences of the "ulterior measures" alluded to by Prussia has given no little encouragement to that power to carry out her threats, and has aroused the sympathy of all those who love freedom and national independence for the brave little republic which has declared it will "not brave little republic which has declared it will "not shrink from sacrificing all its grown up men, rather than yield to unjust demands."

The most exteusive military preparations are being made in Prussia for the immediate invasion of Switzerland and the occupation of Basle and Schaffhausen. The number of the troops to be employed, the names of the Generals, and the fact that the Prince of Prussia is to be Commander-in-Chief, are severally announced by the Berlin journals, and a note is said to have been despatched by M. Manteuffel to the powers who signed the London protectly, announcing that the King of Prussia, finding that diplomacy has failed to settle the dispute, and that diplomacy has failed to settle the dispute, and finding that his honor is seriously compromised by delay, has determined to take the matter into his own hands, and endeavor to obtain by the sword what he has failed to achieve by the pea. Switzerland, on the other hand, nothing daunted, is making her preparations for defense, and is determined to accept the combat. Relying on the valor of her sturdy population, inspired by the memory of her glorious history, strengthed by the possession of free institutions, and entrenched behind the fortifications with which nature has surrounded her, she is resolved to defend her liberties at every service. resolved to defend her liberties at every sacrifice. This gallant, dignified, and just attitude must command universal respect, and if she be forced to accept the battle in defence of her national honor and independence, every freeman must wish her success against her Prussian iuvader. What course England will take in the matter, is not yet declared; but should Prussia resort to arms it is not likely that the British people will long allow their government to continue inactive spectaallow their government to continue inactive spectators of an attempt to crush out Swiss liberty. The Gazette de France says that the Cabinets of St. James and the Tuileries are at complete variance on the Swiss question, and the Loudon Daily News loudly calls on Lord Palmerston to proclaim, in the most unequivocal language, "the determination of the English Court and Cabinet to resist such a gross-violation of the international laws of Europe as the English Court and Catinet to resist such a gross violation of the international laws of Europe as threatened by the King of Prussia, with the promised comivance of the Emperor of the French." It may be that English counsels will prevail, at the last moment, to prevent matters proceeding to extremities, and the Prussia will be saved the diagrace, and Switzerland the calamity, of shedding each other's blood for so insufficient a cause.

The Millionaire Negro Singer.—Among the celebrities of New York is E. P. Christy, the negro minstrel, who, having made a princely fortune out of burnt cork and Ethiopian melodies, now lives the life of a wealthy and fashionable New Yorker. He recently made a great dash in the streets with a magnificent sleigh, which attracted unusual attention from its splendor and the beauty of the prancing stud of snow-white horses, to which it was attached. In the summer he drives out in an elegant carriage, behind two splendid bays, with a fine large coach-dog rinning under the carriage. He is quite a connoisseur in horse-flesh, and in driving out alternates between his bay and white horses. promenade he is accompanied by a large bull-terrier, a splendid specimen of the canne race. His wealth is prodigious, and, as he has been economical and laborious while earning it, he feels anthorized to spend it freely. He may be frequently seen in the dress circle of the Italian Opera, and is always the observed of all observers.

THE LADIES ARE BECOMING MORE AND MORE alive every year to the Importance of Fur Wrappings, which proves most conclusively that this is a progressive age. There is nothing that dees so effectually protest them against the consequences of this changeable climate as Furs, and there is nothing so confortable, elegant, or durable. They can be had of HAYES, CRAIG, & CO. so cheap that it would be economy to purchase Fur instead of Velvet, Cloth, or Silk Cloaks.

We have still a few sets of Russian Sable, which we will dispose of so low that it would be an object to purchase them in mipsdmmer.

LADIES' FURS AT REDUCED PRICES

HAYES, CRAIG, & CO. are making quite a stir among the ladies in consequence of the low price of their Fors. Having en hand much too large a stock for the season, and much of it too fine for this market—at least the ladies think so—they do not wish to bumbug their customers by "selling at cost"—have reduced their prices very natterially, and are now furnishing the ladies with Fors of evety description at much lower prices than they were ever before retailed for in the Western country, and lutend to do so until after Christmas, which will afford a good opportunity to all those who wish to make Christmas presents.
There certainly is nothing more scasonable for such perposes; and geutlemen inclined that way will find our l'ureso low that they are within the reach of all.

DEATH OF MRS. DANIELS .- The telegraph has intirmed us of the death of Mrs. Daniels, wife of Judge Daniels of the Supreme Court of the United States. She was fatally burned by her clothes carbing are from a candle. The New York Tribune's Washington correspondent says:

Parts of the body were nuch charred, and the whole con-bear eadly disfigured. She was the wife of Judge Daniels of the Supreme Court, and danghter of Dr. Harris of Phil-adotphia, long at the head of the medical bureau here. Her consciousness was processive almost to the last moment, and she observed to her attendants that just before the accident she bad been reflecting upon the degree of happiness with which she had been blessed. Her marriage attracted much cressark in society a few years ago from the disparity of agre, but it was eingularly fortunate in mutual devotion and satisfaction.

The Bedford (Ind.) Standard says that D. Borand has slaughtered about 5,000 hogs in that county, which is all that have been killed there.

The Vincennes Sun says there will be a falling off n the number of hogs killed at that point last season of from 20 to 30 per cent.

The number packed at Palmyra, Lagrange, and Hannibal, Mo., and Quincy and Springfield, Ill., up to the 1st, was 88,000 head, against 100,000 same time last year.

Nothing of importance transpired in our own market yesterday, but holders are very firm in their aslaing rates. The Cincinnati Gazette, of yesterday

The transactions in hogs and provisions to-day were limited, owing chiefly to the increased firmness of holders. Light hogs sold at $6 90, and $7 50 was asked for extra heavy. The arrivals are light, but fair for the season. Mess pork is held at $17 50. Bulk meat at 70815c for shoulders and sides, and paime bbl lard at 1115c, but buyers are reluctant to accede to these demands. Sellers however exhibit no anxiety to realise.

There is of course very little of the hog products

There is of course very little of the hog products going out of market and this works in favor of speculators.

Diplomatic relations are suspended between Switzerland and Prussia and matters are becoming ex-tremely complicated. No reply had been received to the note addressed by Prussia to the great powers on the Neufchatel question. Meantime, Prussia per-sists in forcible measure and has notified the Ger-manic Diet that her own troops are sufficient for the manic Diet that her own troops are sufficient for the emergency, and 35,000 troops will assemble at Berlin by January and march under Gen. Vongroken upon Switzerland. The latter power is behaving with great gallantry. The population are called to arms and respond with enthusiasm. Twenty thousand will be armed immediately, of which 1,000 under Vourgoise will defend Vasie and the remainder under Gen. Teylor, will garrison Schofhausen.
The van and reserve of the army willoperate in the sield. Unlimited credit for military purposes has been voted. The Federal Diet is convoked for the

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

Serious apprehensions are entertained here that the new British treaty may be defeated. A strong opposition to it is springing up among the Southern Senators. The main objectious are that it recognizes and establishes the territorial rights of European natives on this continent, that it so far nullifies the Monroe doctrine; and finally, that it limits the na tional expansion of our government. The above is from the correspondent of the New York Evening
